

Gone in an instant

Steve Skinner, an amateur photographer captured the moment an F18 Super Hornet created a vapour cone during a high-speed pass at the Miramar airbase in San Diego, California. The phenomenon occurs when a jet flies through a pocket of humid air. The rise in air pressure due to the plane's 'pressure envelope' causes water to condense, and then instantly re-vaporise